THE vote of thanks accorded on Monday b the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce to Sir RICHARD GRAVES MICDONNELL WES not undeserved. However much the people of RICHARD's administration when at the head of the Government, they were always preterm of office is to be found in the fact that suddenly in the house of Plan, which he had not deepening of the river in front. The bunding he was too much bent on following his own quitted. inclinations and carrying out his own views, about the wisdom of which he never allowed a suspicion to enter his mind. This autoeratic tendency necessarily brought him into festival of Mardigras, in a spirit of religious has again collapsed. constant collision with public opinion, which indeed was rarely in his favour. But on the nearly blinding and smothering him. The will have a bulk placed here on the South Bank subject of the policy to be pursued towards the Chinese Government his views word sound, and on the blockade question he was ever in accord with the large majority of the residents. The letter read at the meeting of the Chamber shows very clearly that Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL'S interest in the Colony has in no way abated, though his connection with it has long since ceased. Evidently he remembers nothing but the kind feelings entertained towards him in his private capacity, and has forgotten, as a wise and high spirited man always does, the hostile enticism which his public acts called forth Though be paid little deference to the wishes and opinions of the residents in general, he treated the collective wisdom embodied in work and he only gave her impudence. He the Chamber of Commerce with more consideration, and in his outside policy was guided in great measure, as the CHAIRMAN him out and ordered him to wash them up said, by what took place therein. He may be depended upon to continue his exertions at home in official quarters to secure the attention of the Imperial Government to the present evil system of the blockade of this port adopted by the Chinese authorities. Rightly enough does Sir RICHARD aver that it is detrimental to British prestige and influence," as well as injurious to native trade. We trust that the matter will soon receive the investigation it demands from our Government. Whenever the blockade is discontinued, as it is to be hoped it will be ere long, through the intervention of the British authorities, the residents of Hongkong will owe it in no inconsiderable degree to the him to be reminded that he could not be insolent the first produmation, bearing date the 5th efforts of Sir RICHARD MACDORNALL. The thanks of the Chamber of Commerce were therefore fittingly bestowed upon him.

in direct violation of treaty stipulations. The olloged reason for this innovation was that some native merchants, after taking delivery of their goods, fail to report them for taxation at the native office, that false representations are made that these goods belong to foreign hongs, together with other excuses with more or less truth in thom. But it is none the less vexing and harassing in it when she gave the alarm be was attempt. the S. S. N. Co., for the Chilli to take back to to British merchants, who are not concerned with the malpractice of Chinese traders, and who see no fun in being made victims to their dishonesty and unscrupulous evasion of duties. The Chinese authorities ought, too, to be able to guard against such infringements of the law, and not have recourse to measures that are fruitful of annoyance and ombarrassment to innocent foreigners. If the native traders are to be credited, the new rule was to have been imposed on foreign imports, had not very strong remonstrances been addressed to the Taotai by the different Consuls, and in consequence of which that official disclaimed any intention of interfering in any way with foreign trade, or imposing any new tax upon foreign goods. The correspondent of the Courier and Gazette hints that the whole affair originated through the desire of the Taotai to secure a portion of the reverue which ordinarily should fall to his successor. Whatever truth there may be in this surmise, the fact remains that a great and causeless shock was given to trade; through his action, which lasted for a week, and put foreigners to much inconvenience, some loss, and inspired them with considerable uneasiness. Such vagaries must not the afternoon. be indulged in very frequently, or foreign merchants will lose all confidence, and the progress of trade be seriously interrupted.

HALL& HOLTZand KELLY As the undertaking is one that will benefit the public more than it is likely to do the author, he ought to be guaranteed against loss. The Colonial Government, it is true. this would still leave him liable to incur a loss, and the Chamber, in thus coming forward to his assistance, have shown, in a signal manner, their appreciation of his work. They thus also recognise the fact that the more the Chinese language is studied the better it will be for the interests of trade, ne increased facilities of communication are thereby afforded. eign Hongo in the British bettlement, stating distinctly that the Barrier taxes would only be levied at the Custom House on native merchandize and not on foreign merchandize. On the 19th instant, the Tientain dealers commenced taking delivery of their goods from the Bund and the Chilli, to lighter them up to town to their warehouses. The trufflo here to-day is going on as formerly.

The correspondent of the Shanghai Courier. and China Gazette, writing on the same date,

It seems morally certain, in view of these facts, that the Taotai's inflected anxiety to protect the revenue from fraud bas its origin in the ingressed amount of syoce which might accrus to his own exchequor, rather than in any high moral sensibility on the subject of revenue reform. In short, the whole thing seems to have been nothing more than a well-directed effort on the part of the retiring Toutai to fill his pocket with a portion of the revenue which. ordinarily should fall to bis successor. This is a common practice amongst the officials of China, and is eminently characteristic of their way of doing things. If it had ended bere, attention would have been given to the affair, by foreign residents. But unfortunately this sudden change gave trade such a shock as to create a panio. Consiguees of foreign goods began to refuse to take delivery. Steamer after steamer kept coming in from Shangbai with heavy freights. Their cargoes of piece goods lay piled upon the Band by hundreds and thousands of bales, and still they came. Rumour were rife that foreign goods were to be subjected to the same restrictions as native imports, and for a day or two the wildest commercial excitement provailed that has been witnessed at Tientain for years. It seemed impossible to credit the rumous that the Tsotal was attempting to impose the new rale upon foreign imports; but all the native merchants were agreed in saying it was so. Some of them are reported to have sen orders to Shanghai requesting a suspension shipments to the north for the present.

one instance the consignees applied for permission to re-export their cargoes of piece goods to Shanghai by the same steamer that brough them porth, and in every instance, so far as advised, the consignees of foreign goods refused to take delivery or clear them at the Customs declaring that the additional tax nuder the new regulation was applicable to them equally with native imports, and that to pay it would work

A FOREST OF GIANT SEQUOIAS. It has been supposed that the Bierra sequoins, our Sovereign, whilst it is presented, with livered message. It was not for the clergy to or Big Trees of California, were confined to a ceremony, to foreigners, who will be able, pick them out by name. He spoke resentfully few small and isolated groves like those known on their arrival in Europe, to have them of Mr. Ruskin's allusion to the clorical profes. to toucists by the names of Calaverse, Taophotographed afresh, and to sell them to photo- sion as one the choice of which in these days lumne. Merced and Mariposa, scattered at considerable intervals along the western slope of the mountains for a distance of sixty miles. It was known that a collection of big trees, larger than any of those in the Mariposa and Calaveras regions exists in Franco county, where Thomas's mill has for several years been sawing this redwood of the Sierra to supply the market Visiting but it was discovered last summer that this body of Big Tree timber is not properly grove, but a forest extending for not less than seventy miles in a northwest and coutbsastward direction, with a width in some places of ten miles, and interrupted only by the deep canons which out scross the general course of the forest, and reduce the level to an elevation below that at which the tree is found in a wild condition, although when cultivated it thrives n all our valleys.

Different persons have traced the forest from the basin of the Tule river in latitude 36 deg. 20 min. across those of the Kaweah and Kings to that of the San Joaquin. The elevation kas not been carefully measured, but is supposed to vary from 4,000 to 6,000 feet. At one point and one only this forest is accessible by a wagon road, and that is at Thomas's will, 48 miles from Visalia. Unlike the groves farther north. this forest consists mainly and in some places almost exclusively of the Big Trees, and there are also a multitude of small ones in all the agea of growth, some just sprouting, and others saplings only two or three feet through. The largest standing tree as yet measured is forty feet in diameter; a charred stump-the tree itself having disappeared - messures forty-one feet parous. A tree twenty-four feet in diameter. four feet above the ground, is precisely the earns thickness sixty feet bigher. A fallon trunk is hollow throughout its length, and the hole is large enough to drive a horse and buggy

This forest is so extensive, the timber is so abundant and excellent in quality, and the demand for it is so great in the bare valley, at the foot of the mountain, that it cannot be withheld from the are and the saw-mill. The wood is similar in general observer to the Coast sequoid or common redwood; straight in grain, splitting freely, even enough in grain for furniture, and far superior to oak, in its keeping qualities in positions exposed to alterations of moisture. The Sierra sequoia does not throw up apronts from its stump as does the redwood, and can therefore be killed out more readily. It was wise inCongress to make a reservation for pleasure purposes of the Mariposa Grove, which is near Yosemite, small and conveniently accessible to tourists by the present routes of travel; but the Tulare-Fresno forest-it is all in those two counties—cannot be converted into a public reservation. Numerous saw mills will be built on its line, and flumes will carry the lumber down to the consumers. Wagon roads will ascend from the railroad turns to the California Alps, passing through the forest and receiving great attractions from it. - Daily Alla.

A BUSSIAN FETE.

A correspondent of The Times, writing; on he 19th January, from St. Petersburg, says :-Yesterday was a great duy in the Bussian Empire. It was the 6th of January, according to the Old Style, the Feast of the Epiphany, and the waters were blessed in every place where Orthodox " Christians reside. From the frontiers of Prussis to Kamtchatks, and from Arkangel to Tankend, the whole of Russia was occupied yesterday in an open air coremony. which is, perhaps, the most picturesque of those enstomary in the Eastern Church. In St. Petersburg, the presence of the Emperor and of the Imperial Family naturally adds much to the grandent of the proceedings, and it is no eraggeration to say that one-half of the poptalation of the city had crowded together on the The members of the Tientsin Race Club held man named Slimmer, when proceeding to cos one have even adjutant his base was a distant and the frozen river, to Workman had been busy for the last week the Winter Pulace; the dome had been painted a lovely blue, and golden stars were to be seen on it at first, but show again covered it, and yesterday only that side on which the sun shone showed its bright colours. The cold was great-20 below zero. Centigrade-and many people thought with dismay of the Emperor exposing himself to it, with bared hand, during the consecration of the water. The advice of wise physicians prevailed; a portion of the service was performed in the charch of the Palace, and on the toe itself His Majesty was represented by the Cesarewitch and the other Grand Dukes of the Imperial Family. The church inside the Winter Palace is of consideruble size; it ranks as a cathedral among Russian churches, and a numerous Chapter and staff of priests are attached to it. When I entered it yesterday the service had already commenced, the sun was shining brilliantly on the golden arches and pillare, and the whole space was filled by a growd of officers in full dress and Court officials in most gorgeous costumes. The singing was really lovely; in no other Russian church can the harmony of the Greek Liturgy be heard to such perfection as here—the best tenors and bass voices in the Empire are selected for this choir, and the training is under the direction of emment musicians. From the charch we proceeded through several halls, where troops were drawn up ready to be reviewed by the Emperor, to a side saloon, where we waited till the procession had formed and was ready to leave the Palace and proceed to the shrine on the Neva. As we were shown from this room to the Nicholas-hall, which looks on the river, we again passed through the different detachments of the Beginnents of the Guard returns, in a leading article, to a subject which brilliant subjects, petitioning her to endeavour ranged along the walls of the immense balls of "St. George," of the "Marabale," and of "Arms." From the windows of the Nicholas-hall a capital view could be obtained of the ceremony on the Neva. The Cerarewitch attracted much attention throughout the joy-song in the breast of a fluttering, harmless the Grand Dukes, thousands of officers, all bareheaded and without cloaks or furs biding their foll-dress uniforms, filled the temple on the ice and the aurrounding platforms. HANS VOGEL. AN EPISODE OF THE FRANCO PRUSSIAN WAR.

mose," totters and falls in the cold frosty air, after the num, followed by the return of the Medici fight. His hour is come, and he longs "for one deep Adrian VI. was a solitary ascetic, who kept his eide, and finds it a fack full of wine dropt there by all hours of the night, and astonished Rome

- Hans Vogel's heart leaps up in joy, "Dem Himmel res Dank!" he cries-Then pursing out his thirsty lips Propages to qualf his prize -When lo | a sound-he starts-and meets

A pair of burning eyes! Pront on a bed of comrades dead. His faint breath swiftly flying, His breast torn open by a shell,
A Grensdier is lyipg: Grim as a wolf, with gleaming fange,

The Frenchmen glareth, dying! White are his looks, his features worn With many a wild compaign, He rocks his head from aids to side Like to a beast in painle group athirst, with open mouth,

Again and yet again. Hans Vogel, in the act to drink And render God due praise, Drons down his fever'd hand in doubt And pauses in ameze. For on the flask that Grensdier Fixeth his filmy gaze!

Hans Vogel smiles, "Here lieth one Whose need is more than mine!" Then, crawling over to his foe, Look, Frenchman, here is wine! And by the God that made us both Shall every drop be thine!"

Hast thou beheld a dying boar, Struck bleeding to the ground Spring with one last expiring three To rip the foremost hound? ferrible fatal, pitiless, It slays with one swift bound, Ev'n so that grizzly wolf of war, With eyes of hate and ire, . Stirs as he lies, and on the ground Gropes with a flerce desire,-Then lifts a mighty carbine up.

And lo! one flash of fire

A flash-a crash! Hans Vogel still Is kneeling on his knee, His heart is beating quick, his face Is pale as man's can be : The ball just graied his bleeding brow,-"Potstausend !" murmureth he.

Hans frowns; and rising to his lips The flash, begins to qualf; Then holds it to the fading light With sly and bynic laugh, Deep was his drought—sweet was the wine—
And he hath drough the half!

But now he glanceth once again Where that grim Frenchman lies-Gasping still waits that wolf of war Like to a besat that dies-He groups atbirst, with open mouth,

And slowly glazing eyes. Hens Vogel smiles; unto his fee Again now totters be He scarce can hear or see.

Hone Vogel holds his hand; and takes

His head upon his knee! Then down the dying Frenchman's throat He sends the liquor fine: "Half yet remains, old boy," he cries, While pouring down the wine-"Hads' then not play'd me such a trick, ... It would have all been thine!"

Hans Vogel speakath in the tongus Of his good Fatherland-The Frenchman hears an alien sound And cannot understand. But he can taste the warm red wine

And feel the kindly hand. See I looking in Hana Vogel's face He stira his gritzly head-Up, smiling, goes the grim moustache O'er checks as grey as lend-With one last glimmer of the eyes

He smiles, -and he is dead. POPES OF THE SIXTEENTH

> DOES SUNSHINE PUT OUT A FIRE A good deal of discussion has lately taken place in this country over the old question whether sunshine checks combustion. It is an old notion that sunlight lessens the intensity of a fire, and may even put it out, and the theory was that the sun's heat by expanding the air caused a diminished supply of oxygen to the coal. This and all other explanations are now condemned, and the fact is depied. One writer says that if a few pieces of charcoal are ignited in a chauffer, and placed in a sunny room provided with closely fitting shutters, the fire will appear to die away in the sun's light. But if the shutters are closed, the coals will be seen to be in full combustion. There is no phenomenon at all, but only the appearance of one, which is due not to the sun's heat, but to the fact that its light, being stronger than that of the coals, overcomes and subdues it. The factor combustion is so intimately connected with glowing ignition in our minds, that anything which lessens the glow appears also to diminish the combustion, - Cassell's Magazine.

WITCHCRAFT. The Queen herself, "being under excessive anguish by pains of her teeth, in so much that she took no rest for divers nights," a Mrs. Dier was accused of having brought on the affliction by conjuration and witchcraft. I there was a thunderstorm or a gale of wind one or two witches were seized and burned as a preventative for the future. This popular frenzy was much encouraged by the publication, at Edinburgh, in 1597, of a work entitled, "Daemonologie," by no less an author than King James himself. This treatise owed its origin, it was said, to a discovery which the King had made, that when | 331. % on Local Bisks only. be went to Denmark, in 1590, there was a conspiracy of two hundred witches to drown him on his return. A London edition of the "Daemonologie" was issued in 1603, the preface to which speaks of the "fearful abounding at this time in this country of these detestable slaves of the devil. the witches or enchanters." The Legislature lent its sanction to the belief: in a statute against witches, which was passed soon after the accession of James, and was not repealed till 1736, it was enacted that any one who should practice any invocation or conjuration of any evil or wicked spirit, or conployed in any manner of witcheraft, sorcery. obserm or enchantment, whereby any person persons suspected of witcherait were for the teresting as historic studies, these sketches most part old, lame, blear-eyed, and wrinkled have considerable value for the students of Collins' Shakespeare.
